On "stupid" Emergency Laws

by Andrew C. McCarthy, 8 Jan 2019

...I don't think the president should do this because it is bad policy... and I hope he won't do it because it would be smarter to try to convince more of the public that he has a good case, which would put pressure on Congress to address the problem. But that said, I do not doubt that federal law empowers the president to declare a national emergency and reprogram funds to construct civil-defense projects the president deems essential to national defense. (See, e.g., Section 2293 of Title 33, U.S. Code.)...

...But here's a paradox: If there is an emergency on the border, it is caused by Congress... It is Congress that has enacted law calling for barriers on the border but has failed to fund it. It is Congress that has enticed illegal aliens to arrive as families ... It is Congress that has punted to the courts... It is Congress that entices illegal aliens to sneak across the border or overstay their visas ... <https://www.nationalreview.com/corner/on-stupid-emergency-laws/>
